WELCOME

...to the island of olives, wine, figs and honey – an oasis just 9 nautical miles from Split, ideal for boaters, families and all those looking for a stress relief holiday...

The Island of Šolta is only 19 kilometers long, 4.5 kilometers wide and in the very vicinity of the city of Split to which it is connected with eight connections daily in the season. Swap the perpetually crowded roads leading to cramped city beaches for a ferry ride, cool down on the ferry’s deck and, in less than an hour, arrive at a destination with crystal clear sea, numerous pebble beaches not busy with bathers, with realistic and affordable prices. Here, no one will bother you shouting “Zimmerfrei!”. After a good swim and still in your summer mood-tanned, salty and calm, leave the beach and head over to one of the numerous family-run farms on the island, and learn of the art of making oil, wine and honey. Doesn’t a glass of Dobričić wine, drunk in the same cellar it’s made, served with olive pate made with olives from Šolta and anchovies in golden, award-winning olive oil sound absolutely enticing? Looking to get your adrenalin fueled? Try scuba diving or sea kayaking around Maslinica’s islets. The south side of the island harbors a multitude of alcoves that cannot be reached by car with some of the best places on the island to eat fresh, homemade meals you won’t easily forget. Some of these spots have already become a must on boating routes for boaters that usually spend the nights in Maslinica, Stomorska or Rogač. These three harbors offer safe berths and good conditions for boaters; with Maslinica having a brand new marina and Stomorska and Rogač offering berths in the center of respective towns.

Tourist offices in Stomorska, Nečujam, Rogač and Maslinica are at your disposal for any inquiries, promo materials or suggestions or simply for Wi-Fi.

Now, read the rest of this later! It’s time to hop into a swimsuit, have a quick grappa with your hosts and do what you came here to do – enjoy! And as the islanders say- one day “may you end up in Šolta!”

HISTORY OF ŠOLTA

...a brief introduction to the history from the Neolithic era to the present

The history of Šolta dates back to the Neolithic era, but the first legends are related to Illyrians, as apparently their queen Teuta had her palace above the bay Senjska on the south side of Šolta, where its remains are still visible. The remnants of “villae rusticae”, a fairly common edifice of the land-owners in the ancient times, can also be found on the island – around Donje Selo, Rogač (Banje alcove), Gornje Selo (Starine) and Nečujam (Piškera). Here is where the emperor Diocletian back in the 295 AD had built his own fish farm, visible today only under water. Christianity started to spread on the island only in the beginning of the fourth century AD – the remains of the basilica and sarcophagus from that time can be found next to the church of St. Stjepan in Grohote. In 614, when the Avars destroyed Salona – the capital of Dalmatia province, the refugees from this glorious city came to Šolta, as it was one of the closest points of escape.

Soon after, the Croats came to Šolta and Romans, Illyrians and Croats blended together. The island’s location made it an easy mark for pirates and was attacked several times. The biggest attack happened in June of 1240., when the pirates from Omiš burned the church of St. Stjepan in Grohote. Never fully independent, Šolta was then owned by the nobility from Split – Šolta’s farmers were working for them, bringing the goods produced on Šolta, from vegetables to limestone, on their boats to Split.

The first defensive fortresses on the island were built in the 15th century, when the Venetians were battling against the Turks.

One of those castles is in Grohote now and it is the office of the Municipality of Šolta– restored now of course. Another beautiful restoration happened in Maslinica, where the castle Martinis Marchi (which was actually the beginning of what id today’s Maslinica, together with the St. Nicholas church built around 1706. AD) was transformed into a luxury hotel with only six rooms, private pool, a SPA and a beautiful Marina in front.

At the end of the 15th and the beginning of the 16th century, Marko Marulić, the father of Croatian literature, spent time in Šolta– in Nečujam, the “quiet bay”– after he allegedly got in trouble with one noble girl’s family.

In 1905., the people of Šolta felt tired of being ruled over by the ever-changing administrators and nobles they had to give their goods to, and decided to buy back their own lands from Split’s nobility. They were given a 25-year contract, whose value today would be about 1.5 million Euros. Paying off this debt was not easy, as the constant agricultural work required to do so left little time for education or planning the island’s development.
With the debt finally paid off, another great adversity struck to the island and the world– the Second World War- when the total of 1,800 persons left Šolta and fled to the camps in El Shaht in Egypt. For over six months Šolta was completely empty. In 1946., people started to come back to the island and efforts were being made to restore a somewhat normal life.

The Municipality of Šolta was set again in 1952., roads were built, the electrification of the island commenced, the school and medical facilities were built, two buses were bought to connect the island, etc. The Municipality was taking proactive action, but the island was still being depopulated.

The second one was called “Jugoplastika”- it was one of the biggest companies in ex- Yugoslavia that produced various items made from plastic. They had a factory in Grohote and were employing most of the island’s population. Even though things were looking up for Šolta, in 1962. it was again brought under the Split Municipality and suffered a period of stagnation. Only after the Homeland war in Croatia, in 1993., Šolta again got back its Municipality in the same form as it is today and has continued working on the development on the island, especially in the terms of agricultural production and tourism.
WHAT TO SEE AND DO

...a short visitor’s guide

Šolta is a treasure for those who love nature. The island is only 19 km long and 4.9 km wide, so if you decide to see the most of it, do it on foot or explore the island by bike (for more info please contact tourist info centers). Take a map in one of our tourist offices and enjoy many paths and trails leading trough ancient olive groves and wild stone-walled meadows. Walking around the island you will notice small roof-less stone buildings. They are so-called „japenice“ where lime was produced in the past. Just follow the signs along the main road as they will take you to the secret beaches and bays. There are a lot of wonderful beaches on the island, but the most beautiful ones are those on the south side. Amazing cliff-scape overlooking hidden alcoves will take your breath away. Why not spend the whole day in Tatinja or in Senjska for example? One of Šolta’s most interesting legends is that on the mountain above the bay of Senjska the legendary Illyrian queen Teuta had a fort.

Maybe you are looking to boost your adrenalin? Why not try sea kayaking around 7 small islets in front of Maslinica? Šolta can also provide you with spectacular diving experience. There are several wrecks in the waters surrounding the island, and spectacular marine life on the underwater cliffs on the south side. You can also spend your morning playing tennis, or maybe take your whole family to medieval archery club in Maslinica.

After swimming and indulging in relaxing activities, we recommend visiting the family-run farms both on the coast and inland, where you can see how oil, wine or honey is made. Doesn’t a glass of Dobričić wine, drunk in the same cellar it’s made, served with olive pate made with olives from Šolta and anchovies in golden award-winning olive oil sound absolutely enticing? Try several types of award-winning olive oil in the olive oil mill in Gornje Selo, or go to a honey farm and discover everything about Šolta’s famous honey Olynthio. While there, while visiting Šolta’s inland don’t forget to explore old villages and enjoy traditional dalmatian architecture. The biggest and the most important village throughout history was Grohote, located in the center of the island. Visit St. Stjepan’s Church, built on the site of an older church, next to the remnants of an Early Christian basilica. Take a look at Slavička kula, the castle of patrician family from Split, today’s Šolta municipality office. We recommend a lovely walk trough fields and vineyards to visit St. Mihovil’s Church, located under the hill of Vela Straža. It is only a half an hour walk, which has a pleasant surprise in store for you when you pass by Basilija, the pound in the middle of the field.
Also discover Donje Selo and Srednje Selo, charming Dalmatian stone villages.

When you are in Šolta, a must see is Stomorska, the oldest coastal village on the island. It is situated under Gornje Selo, small village on the island's highest peak. The village of Stomorska is known for being the home of many families of seamen and ship-owners who traded with wine and lime stone. Today Stomorska is a nice touristic village with a lots of caffee bars, taverns and apartments.

10 kilometers away is Nečujam, the youngest village on the island, with lots of apartments and the largest beach on the island. It is a large bay with seven small bays in it. Because of its beauty, famous writer Marko Marulić, the father of Croatian literature, spent his summers in Nečujam.

At last, don't forget to see the sunset in Maslinica. This picturesque fisherman's village on the western part of the island is overlooking an archipelago of seven islands. Also, here is idyllic castle that was owned by the aristocratic family Marchi, now turned into an exclusive heritage hotel. Just at the entrance of the village is a small church on the top of the hill. There you can enjoy in Šolta's most beautiful sunset view framed by the seven islets.
If you are not yet tired after some grilled fish and a glass of home made wine, check out summer events program which can be found on our website. See if there is a klapa singing, local brass band playing or folklore group dancing near you. Pay a visit to them – these are all locals that spend their winter evenings practicing for the shows that revive our cultural heritage. Finish your evenings with a visit to a beach bar in Maslinica or Stomorska, but remember to save your energy for the beauties that Šolta offers during the day!
“DOBRIĆIĆ” WINE
a new era of an authentic variety

When on vacation, a glass of wine on your balcony overlooking the sea sounds enticing, doesn’t it? And if you know that the wine in your glass is grown and made only on this island, it sounds even better. It is true – Šolta has its authentic variety of wine called Dobričić, an old variety unique in Dalmatia by many qualities. It has been scientifically proven that this variety is one of the parents of Plavac Mali (the other parent is kaštelanski Crîjenak, also know as Zinfandel), one of the best known red grape varieties in Croatia.

Dobričić grows on Šolta’s karst soil which, combined with the number of sunny days in the area, results in the variety’s spectacular taste. The color is an exquisite dark red with purple shading. The variety has been grown on the island since the ancient times, but the expansion happened with its revitalization, which started in 2005. This variety almost dissapeared but with the efforts and investments made by the Municipality of Šolta, it continued on and several families on the island have devoted themselves to making excellent wine in limited quantities.

Make sure to taste Šolta through this authentic variety, learn more about it and see for yourself how this limited quantity wine is made on the local family-run farms.
ŠOLTA’S HONEY
rosemary honey with a pedigree

Did you know Šolta is, besides the wine and olive oil, also well known among the experts for its great domestic honey? Šolta’s wild (self-seeding) rosemary produces a unique mono-floral honey the locals call Olintio, that has been held in the highest regard since the ancient times.

Beekeeping is truly one of Šolta’s traditions, as proven by the fact that the first beekeeping association was founded in Šolta in 1875. During the period of French administration in Dalmatia, a special commission grading the quality of honey in the area deemed our honey as the best honey, not only in the area, but in the entire Europe! Shortly after, Šolta’s honey excited the public again and won medals in Bratislava. It was mentioned in the Italian newspaper Unità Catolica, and again, after the World War II, in a book on honey “Il Miele”, also published in Italy. There it is written that the honey from Šolta, for its qualities, is among the best three types of honey in the world.

Do not miss the opportunity to taste this honey and get yourself a jar of rosemary honey with a pedigree!
OLIVES & OLIVE OIL

Levatinka – authentic variety giving “liquid gold”

If you are reading this guide, you are most likely on Šolta. And if you are here, you’ve definitely tried tasty freshly-caught grilled fish in one of the local restaurants. Yes, the fish is amazing, but have you ever asked yourself why all the food just tastes different and better here? The secret to our Dalmatian cuisine is the home-made olive oil.

Unlike in the rest of the world, where the olive tree groves are huge and the production and harvest are mechanized, the trees here are hand-picked every year in early November. Olive picking dates are marked in all the social calendars – it is the time when the weather is still nice and the families get together on their plantations, laugh, work, eat and drink together until every single olive is in the sack. Some families even invite their friends and summer guests to spend some time out in the open with them and help them with harvesting.

There are about 100,000 olive trees in Šolta today, but only about half of them is cultivated and actually used for harvesting. The rest is uncared for, usually due to problems with land ownership administration, but certainly show potential for growth. Among these trees, there are two varieties of olives, almost in equal ratios: Oblica and Levatinka (also called Šoltanka= lady from Šolta), both authentic Dalmatian olive varieties. Oblica was widely grown in Šolta until mid-20th century when the experts started pushing the original variety from Šolta called Šoltanka due to its agronomic and biological values. Levatinka needed soil with good watering and today it can be found only in Southern Dalmatia, mostly, though, on the Island of Šolta.

Olive growing became very popular among the locals but also among the vacation house owners that live on Šolta seasonally – some do it professionally, some to create a supply for themselves and some do it for the extra income, as Šolta’s olive oil is highly regarded and priced in Croatia.

And all of this is not just us bragging about the “liquid gold” from Šolta – our olive oil keeps on winning awards on a national and international level and year after year it is named one of the best oils in the country! We are proud to say that the name ‘Šoltansko maslinovo ulje’ was entered into the Register of Protected Designations of Origin and Protected Geographical Indications. Olive oil produced by an Association “Zlatna Šoltanka” was awarded with golden medal for quality in 2017 and won “best in class” award in 2019 at New York Olive Oil Competition, one of the most important olive oil competitions in the world!
Šolta is an island yet to be discovered – its southern bays are a true gem and a must-see! The more or less indented, turquoise oases are ideal for single day excursions, exploration adventures, bathing, swimming, fishing, etc. As soon as you move away from the shore, you will be stunned by the powerful, dark blue open sea that can take you to the nearby islands of Vis and Hvar. Šolta’s southern part is a true treasure for boaters, hikers, inquisitive souls, islanders… On the route from Maslinica in the south-west, all the way to the other end of the island, i.e. to the capes close to the island of Brač and Livka Bay in the south-east, one can find a number of hidden coves alongside the entire southern side. The series continues on the northern side of Šolta, too.

Šipkova cove - The only sandy beach on the island is situated in Šipkova cove, and you can reach it by car or on foot. It looks fantastic in the photos taken by visitors and often posted on Instagram. Is it really so, or is it even more beautiful? See for yourself!

Šešula Bay – this indented bay in the immediate vicinity of Maslinica is a true nautical treasure. Its natural relief is such that it can protect boats from the northern wind ‘bura’ and the southern wind ‘jugo’, which makes it one of the most favourite bays in the Central Dalmatian archipelago. You can also reach it on foot, by car or by bike. As you approach it, you will be mesmerized by the stunning view. It also boasts a superb gastronomic offer your taste buds will not be able to resist, so be sure to visit one of the two excellent restaurants in Šešula bay.
Poganica Bay - this small bay located south-west of Šešula accommodates a beautiful little beach and one house alone. It is ideal as an anchorage haven during ‘bura’ blasts. Like most of the bays, you can also reach it on foot or by macadam path. It boasts a gravel beach surrounded by the idyllic, intact nature and aromatic herbs native to the Mediterranean region. A walk from the end of the path to the very bay takes about ten minutes. The trail is as impressive and mysterious as a tunnel, which makes it ideal for all of those with the Robinson Crusoe spirit.

Zaglav Bay – this romantic, turquoise bay with only a few small stone houses can be reached by boat or by village footpath from Grohote. It is also called Vela Luka.

Tatinja Bay - an ideal place for a day’s excursion and a quiet rest. It has a few small beaches, and it is heaven for cliff divers. The tranquil, crystal clear turquoise sea is protected against both northern and south-eastern winds. In the midst of the bay protrude two rocks, reminiscent of two islets. You can reach the bay on foot from Grohote – by macadam path, and by bike.

Jorja Bay accommodates one house only, and you can reach it by village footpath. It boasts a small pebble beach and is perfect for a swim. Given the quite large anchorage area, the best way to get there is by boat.

Stračinska Bay – when descending towards the bay on foot or by bike from Gornje Selo, an incredible view will present itself before you, perfect for a great photo once you climb your way up through the thick pine woods. The bay hosts a few small rental houses located on the beach – a true turquoise paradise! A few scattered boats, sprinkled like salt over the still water surface in the summer days. If you go left, you will get to the beach Malo žalo, while Velo žalo is on the right. The bay also has a small, hidden, white-pebble beach with an interesting name “Di dida per guzicu” (“Where Grandpa Washes His Bottom”). The same gulf hosts the Sajtija Bay with a few houses; the sea here is incredibly translucent and clear, offering a stunning view of the island of Vis from in-between the two bays.
Livka – it is located near the Split Gates and is closest to the island of Brač. You can reach it by macadam path from Gornje Selo, and some of its outer parts by car, too. In its vicinity is Cape Bad, where you can rent a secluded house and enjoy the beauty in peace.

Donja Krušica can be reached by a narrow road from Donje Selo, by car, by bike or on foot. Once you have reached this beautiful bay, you can enjoy bathing in the crystal clear sea. The bay offers a typical Mediterranean scenery – old stone houses right by the waterfront and numerous small boats. It is ideal for all those who wish to enjoy a peaceful summer; you will immediately feel like you have entered a scene from an old Dalmatian postcard.

Gornja Krušica - Below Vela Straža, the highest point of the island, lies Gornja Krušica surrounded by thick pine woods reflecting in the sea. It can be reached on foot from Gornje Selo or by road or sea from Stomorska. This emerald-sapphire oasis is heaven for swimmers, tourists, inhabitants and boaters. Once a small fishermen’s village with old stone houses, it has to date kept its old charm, and the newly built houses offering private accommodation have not in the least bit spoiled its appearance and peacefulness. It is precisely this combination that makes it so appealing.
ACTIVE VACATION

Explore what Šolta has to offer, take your pick!

If you love nature and active vacation Šolta is the place to be! The island is only 19 km long and 4.9 km wide, so if you decide to see the most of it, do it by foot or explore the island by biking or hiking. Take a map in one of our tourist offices and enjoy many paths and trails leading trough ancient olive groves and wild stone-walled meadows. Just follow the signs along the main road as they will take you to the secret beaches and bays. There are a lot of wonderful beaches on the island, but the most beautiful ones are those on the south side. Amazing cliffscape overlooking hidden bays will take your breath away.

HIKING

Is there a better way to be active and relax at the same time? You can explore the inner parts of the island by starting from the coastal villages of Maslinica, Stomorska, Nečujam or Rogač. Or you can head towards the coast in any direction from the picturesque villages at the heart of the island - Grohote, Gornje Selo, Srednje Selo or Donje Selo, and make your way through Šolta’s southern bays and olive groves to discover the turquoise oases and the crystal clear sea. Make sure to visit some of the lively coastal villages or drop by a neighboring hamlet, walk through its stone alleys and learn the secrets of the old houses, peak into tiny local churches, perhaps stumble upon a hidden tavern and treat your palate to the local cuisine specialties. To get around easier, you can get a map of the island at any local tourist info center, with marked pathways that will lead you to any of the above locations: the sea, olive groves, and hamlets. Explore your way through the kilometers of island paths and trails!

BIKING

Biking is most definitely one of the best ways to soak in and enjoy the nature. By relaxing on two wheels one can relate to the nature in a special way, and become one with it. This activity improves our health and relaxes both our body and mind. No other activity is as diverse and more challenging. Šolta’s terrain will satisfy even the most demanding cyclists and give you the pleasure of enjoying the infinite blue scenery, feast your eyes on the bays, open sea and neighbouring islands, ride through the new and old olive groves, and explore numerous possibilities that will make your vacation as relaxing and enjoyable as possible, and by all means memorable!
SEA KAYAKING

The Adriatic Sea is tranquil and clean, particularly in the Šolta waters, exploring the island landscapes by kayak is an ideal option. In addition to its unique acoustic properties (Valissurda, Latin: the Deaf Bay), the big bay (comprising eight coves) offers you a paradise-like scenery only a few paddle pulls away. Find out what had intrigued Marko Marulić so much to make him stay on Šolta and why he would often invite his friends to rest their eyes and soul in the surreal turquoise setting of Nečujam’s coves, where the pine wood reflects in the sea, and where Diocletian chose to build a fish pond and spend his rest days in the setting becoming of an emperor. If you are a fan of kayaking, here’s another great suggestion: starting from the main beach in Maslinica, embark on a romantic adventure of exploring the nearby islets and enjoy the most beautiful sunset ever, one that is impossible to imagine – you simply need to experience it!

SCUBA DIVING

Turquoise bays, miles long hiking trails, green pine woods, infinite peace for the soul, and utter beauty and tranquility. These are exactly the reasons why many return to our divine island; however, not many have had the chance to dive into a completely different dimension, into a deep blue and even quieter oasis, to explore the beauty of Šolta’s depths. The island’s scuba diving centers offer you a great opportunity to experience an underwater adventure. In Šolta’s vicinity lie sites with sunken ships, and various other scuba diving locations, which makes the seabed exceptionally attractive for underwater tourism. Experience and explore some of the amazing scuba diving sites! The southern part of Šolta offers a truly rich underwater world. Steep rocks fall into the depths and are a home to numerous caves and abundant species of flora and fauna, such as corals.
SAILING

24 alcoves, natural beauties, hidden gems and the south side

If you are visiting Šolta by boat, you are definitely going to enjoy a couple of great spots, some good restaurants, hidden beaches and a safe mooring for the night. Šolta is only 9 nautical miles from Split and due to its geographical location, it will appear on your map as the first day or the last day destination of your cruise. Arriving from the direction of Split, Trogir or Kaštel you will probably first arrive in Rogač (positioned on the north side) – it is the main port of the Island of Šolta and currently the closest marine gas station to Split. Don’t just fill up your tanks in Rogač – there are beaches you might enjoy (especially on the right side as you enter the alcove, towards cove Kašjun) and a lovely restaurant by the sea. The locals keeps their boats in this alcove – it is only 2 kilometers from Grohote, the administrative center of the island. Besides the locals, tourists can moor here as well – there is 25 berths with electricity and water supply. Even if you are without a boat, you can start your cruise in Rogač as there is a charter base (Sailing Europe Charter) on the opposite side of the gas station, offering berths, electricity, water and toilets / showers for guests of their charter.

Set you sail towards the Southeast, and, only a few minutes later, you will end up in the most indented alcove on the island Šolta called Nečujam. Its name derived from the Latin name “Vallis surda”, meaning “the deaf alcove”, called that because of the specific acoustic features this alcove has had since the ancient times. According to the archeological studies, Piškera – one of the most secret coves of Nečujam, served as the Emperor Diocletian’s fish pond. The underwater wall at the alcove’s entrance could be seen as a proof of that theory. Many centuries later, Nečujam inspired the father of Croatian literature Marko Marulić. This artist spent a lot of time in Nečujam creating his master pieces inspired by the peace and harmony of this place, and Nečujam is often called “Marul’s alcove”. Setting sail along the west side of Nečujam you’ll come across peaceful coves Šumpijivina, Potkamenica and Mala Maslinica, well known for being safe anchorage. In the summer time, one can find more than a hundred boats moored here overnight. Leaving the Nečujam alcove behind and following the coast line of Bok cove in the direction of Southwest, you will find Tanki Rat, a huge body of unmarked shallow waters, so the boaters are advised to keep away from the coast line.
There are no berths with running water or electricity in Nečujam, so if you do decide to sail here, you will probably end up anchored in one of the safe alcoves.

The famous maritime alcove Stomorska, a rather small port packed with stone houses located at the sea front is found just two miles southeast. The history of nautical tourism on the Island of Šolta originated right here, in the oldest village on the sea front. Maritime transportation of goods and passengers has been, ever since ancient times, one of the most important business activities for the islanders. The people of Stomorska have always been famous for their fleet of wooden sailing boats that transported oil, wine, figs and similar products. At the beginning of the 1960’s, the ship owners from Stomorska reconstructed their wooden motor sailboats and turned them into cruise tours boats. The business started to flourish in the 70’s, with the boats cruising along the entire Adriatic. Nowadays Stomorska represents a very attractive nautical and tourist center on the Island with plenty of restaurants and bars, furnished with 25 berths for sailing boats and four berths for mega yachts. Other facilities include electricity & water, a small meeting room, toilets and showers.

Sailing 2 miles Southeast of Stomorska, you will come across Gorinja Krušica, the uninhabited alcove at the far east point of Šolta. There are some weekend houses and several apartments for rent in this quiet and beautiful alcove. Sailing towards Split Gate and the Island of Brač, there are extended shallow waters of the cape Tanki Ratac stretching into the sea in the length of approximately 100 meters. Split Gate, the most busy Middle Dalmatian maritime traffic route, is a half mile long border line between Brač and Šolta. You will come across a large alcove Livka there, and then arrive to the south side of Šolta, locally known as “Izvanje” (Outer facet). Magnificent, untouched and in some points rough and steep side of the island is rich with hidden and indented magical inlets and lagoons. Livka alcove is a hydro-archaeological site and a great diving destination. Stračinska is located behind it, housing an charming beach and several fisherman and weekend houses.

Steering further Northwest along high vertical stone blocks screamingly diving into the big blue, you will find two deep inlets- Grabova and Senjska. Both inlets have a handful of cottages and several stunning beaches. The legend says that the Illyrian Queen Teuta had a castle just above Senjska and that the first fish caught by the fisherman had to be thrown back into the sea in order to gain the favor of this famous queen. Lučica, Jorja and Tatinja are the next two inlets in the line of these Šolta pearls, also with a few cottages and piers with local boats. Cruising further along, you will find a few smaller inlets and the fascinating Zaglav alcove with three natural pebble beaches and some fisherman cottages and boats. Poganica cove is next in the row of Šolta’s south side inlets, offering a front view to the long and pointed cape Ražanj. As you ride the currents behind Marinča Rat cape, a captivating view breaks over an array of tiny islands garnishing the west coast of Šolta and leading the way to the deep and hidden lagoon Šešula – the favorite destination for sailors. Šešula is known for its two amazing restaurants right by the sea with free mooring for guests of the restaurants.
The next alcove is Maslinica, one of the eight villages of Šolta. An old castle built in the very beginning of the 18th century towers over the village, today a luxury heritage hotel with a fine dining restaurant, a SPA and a beautiful marina in front. The marina was finished in April 2012 and has 50 berths that can hold mega yachts as well. Locals say that right here is the most beautiful sunset on the island - when the sun on this far west point of the island falls behind the archipelago of seven small islands in front of the village. The heart of the village is adorned with old stone houses housing restaurants, bars and great original souvenir shops.
ART & MUSIC

...meet some of the most interesting artists on the island!

“ŠOLTA” CULTURAL ASSOCIATION
preserving the sounds & dances of the old Šolta

The association has three sections: female klapa “Čuvić”, and the folklore dancing and instrumental section. The sections emerged through unofficial gatherings that included singing as a way to express the emotion towards the island and to conserve and protect the popular ancestral songs. The “Šolta” cultural association, as an essential part of Šolta’s heritage, is funded by the Municipality of Šolta. As mentioned earlier, it is not about only professional singing or dancing – it is about preserving a way of life, about forming friendships and connections and about time well spent during the long winters on the Island of Šolta.

ŠOLTA BRASS BAND OLINTA
the oldest association on the island

Šolta Brass Band was founded back in 1920 and from that day on „Olinta“ is part of island’s cultural identity. Their love for the music inspired them to work with numerous generations of musicians for almost a century. „Olinta“ performs during summer days all around the island. Don’t miss the opportunity to enjoy one of their concerts!

AMATEUR THEATER “SULET”
the fun side of Šolta’s culture

The theater was founded with the purpose of developing the theater culture on the island of Šolta, its cultural tradition, customs and legacy, as well as to promote the dialect of the island that is today being less and less used among the younger population on the island. Members of the theater are active in cultural and entertainment events on the island working closely with the tourism board, but they are also active in one of the most important tasks on a national level – connecting the islands in vicinity and the communities of inland Dalmatia.
Mjesni Odbor band
the new sound of Šolta

It is not only our the traditions that we use to presenting ourselves to the world with– our island is home to one of the most popular new bends in Croatia called “Mjesni Odbor” (translation: Town Council). These six young artists came together in 2009., during, how they call it– “a long and lonely island trouble– the so called winter, with a few glasses of our good wine, friendly talks and working in the fields.”

FINE ARTS
Šolta full of colors

To nurture numerous artists on the island and their exquisite work, who are both recognized outside of Šolta or still developing within the Šolta borders, the Cultural Informative center of the Municipality of Šolta and the association Šolta Art have organized an exhibition of Šolta’s artists in the “Bratska Kuća” in Grohote center throughout the summer. The exhibitions will be opened for visitors every day and entrance is fee-free, so if you are nearby make sure to stop by! You can find the exhibition itinerary and working hours within the events program.
AUTHENTIC SOUVENIRS FROM ŠOLTA

...indulge yourselves with unique tastes of Šolta, enjoy the art and experience parts of our tradition

Organisations Šoltanski Trudi and ŠoltaArt are both distinctive organizations on the Island of Šolta that join together almost all of the most renowned farmers, producers, artists and experts in the field of protecting the traditional heritage of the island. The organizations developed an innovative program that promotes art and the indigenous in a very special manner – after all, the creations and products of their members exist only on the Island of Šolta and nowhere else in the world.

Members of Šoltanski Trudi formed in 2009 to preserve the natural and cultural heritage of the island by encouraging the locals to use natural resources in a sustainable manner that preserves the environment and biodiversity, and to be creative in eco production of the traditional products and their presentation. They did not want to abandon their grandfathers’ farms and they are still using their hands and simple tools to cultivate original grape varieties and olives, and produce top quality wine and olive oil. And they did not stop there – their members make home-made jams, marmalades, liquors, fig, orange and lemon products, etc, all made of plants that grow in a dry land full of sun, right here on the Island of Šolta.

Our small island hides plenty of hard working and modest people that are, most of the time, unaware of the value of what they are creating in their own homes. Those kind of people are in ŠoltaArt, they are practicing painting and applied arts using often only olive tree wood and stone. So if you wish to experience more than just swimming, dining and relaxing on Šolta, visit their open exhibitions during hot summer nights in Maslinica; indulge yourselves with unique tastes of Šolta, enjoy the art exhibitions and experience parts of our tradition and identity.
